

THE SIMONE DE BEAUVOIR INSTITUTE

is pleased to present

"Where Do You Start When You Have No Money?"

a two-day Seminar on Money Management given by

AMANDA GOODWIN

No stranger to the Simone de Beauvoir Institute, where, in 1980, she conducted a six-week workshop series entitled "Money Wisdom For Women," Amanda Goodwin is a consultant on money management with extensive professional experience with people from all walks of financial life.

Goodwin's two-day seminar at the Institute this year will address the kinds of problems common to many women attending university. "Where Do You Start When You Have No Money?" will focus on the realistic assessment of the individual participants' financial goals, in an atmosphere at once relaxed and motivating. Goodwin's participatory approach is structured to lead women taking the workshop away from bad financial habits and attitudes, through exercises designed to help participants to define, understand, and finally take charge of their real financial situation.

The Seminar is sure to be of lasting value to all women.

WHEN:

Two-day Seminar to be held on consecutive Saturdays, February 18 and 25, 1984
9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

WHERE:

Lounge, Simone de Beauvoir Institute
2170 Bishop Street

COST:

$35.00/person
Includes coffee, croissants and materials

REGISTRATION AND FURTHER INFORMATION:

Registration deadline for maximum enrollment of 30 is Tuesday, January 31, 1984. Registration in person at the Simone de Beauvoir Institute, 2170 Bishop Street. Payment of fees by January 31; fees are non-refundable after this date. Please phone 879 8521 for more information.
